

Media Team Audit

Score your team from 1 to 5 across strategic alignment, output quality, workflow, and measurement — and see whether the content is serving the brand or just filling a calendar.

HOW TO USE THIS TOOL

Score each statement below from 1 to 5, then average your scores within each section. Add every section average together and compare against the bands at the end to read your result.

Score 1 (Not in place) – 5 (Strong & consistent)

Strategic Alignment

- ☐ Content produced ties back to a specific, named business objective, not just “staying active.”
- ☐ The team could explain who each piece of content is actually for.
- ☐ Content themes are planned ahead, not decided the morning of posting.

Output Quality

- ☐ Visual and written quality is consistent, not dependent on who happened to make it.
- ☐ Brand guidelines (color, tone, logo use) are followed without needing correction.
- ☐ Content stands up well against competitors' output in the same space.

Workflow

- ☐ There's a documented content calendar or pipeline, not an ad hoc scramble.
- ☐ Approval steps are clear, so content isn't published without the right sign-off — or bottlenecked waiting for it.
- ☐ Raw files, captions, and assets are organized and findable by someone other than the creator.

Measurement

- ☐ Basic performance metrics are tracked and reviewed on a regular schedule.
- ☐ The team adjusts what it makes based on what past content actually performed, not instinct alone.
- ☐ Leadership sees a simple, regular report — not just anecdotal impressions of “doing well.”

READING YOUR SCORE

Add your total points across all sections (out of the maximum shown), then match against the bands below.

Strong (48–60 points)

Strong, strategically-aligned media function. Focus on protecting what's working as the team or output scales.

Functional but Drifting (32–47 points)

Functional but drifting. Usually a strategy or measurement gap, not a talent gap — revisit Strategic Alignment and Measurement first.

Needs Attention (below 32 points)

Content is likely busywork disconnected from results. Pause new production briefly to fix workflow and strategy before making more of it.
